Did you know?

The University of Arizona Disability Resource Center (DRC) is the department that explores and determines reasonable accommodations for disabled students and employees. Click here for a short video.

The DRC doesn't just work with students for accommodations in the classroom, this is also extended to include our IPPE and APPE rotations. This can be a lengthy process so students should contact our direct point of contact at the DRC, Jayci Robb, as early as possible.

As part of the interactive process when exploring an accommodation request, the DRC may contact the college or preceptors to gather more information about the design of the clinical rotation and the essential components. This is a collaborative process which includes the student, the DRC Access Consultant, the experiential education individuals responsible for schedules, and preceptors the student is scheduled with.

A student's DRC affiliation/disability status and identified accommodations are confidential. Only individuals who have a specific need to know in order to implement the accommodations will be included in this process.

If you have any questions or concerns about an identified accommodation, or would like to learn more about the DRC process, please do not hesitate to contact the DRC to discuss:
